IMMIGRATION agents have arrested an Indian woman alleged to be the leader of a group responsible for funneling into the country's telecommunications system to make over-the-board telephone calls and for smuggling Indian nationals into the Philippines.

Immigration Commissioner Alois Germani presented to superior yesterday Paolo Clemente who was arrested earlier this week at San Valentino in Pass. Marittima, after weeks of surveillance.

Cheney was alleged to be the founder of a gang that tapped into the religious spirit of some fundamentalists, including evangelists, nine government agencies and seven foreign embassies, to make fundamentalist big-game safaris which they charged a fee.

The activities of the gang had cost the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. some $100 million in lost revenues, according to the investigation bureau.

Chemists clashed again earlier when a journalist and immigration agent arrested two other Indians and a Bangladeshi in July in connection with the same case.

Spaniards and Chinese was also the principal reason for the illegal entry of 31 Cuban nationals who were arrested by immigration officers at General Gonsalves Camp in 2000.

Investigative Agent Carlos Bustillo, who led the arresting team, said Alamillos joined permanent Philippine residency in 1999 where she applied for asylum under the Asian Political Persecution Act.

The said Electronic was arrested after her husband, also an Indian citizen, reported her activities to the Bureau.

Wardlaw and Macdonald were also being investigated for alleged dollar trading, drug trafficking and smuggling, prostitution and piracy.

Grief, protests in Nepal over hostage slays in Iraq

AMMAN—Nepal observed a day of mourning Thursday for 12 western hostages in Iraq, as a nation gripped by the news of the blood-drenched killing by death squads of the captives.

Katmandu, which suffered loss of thousands of dollars in damage Wednesday when forces struck the headquarters of both nations and human rights, was again Thursday with police going door-to-door to inform citizens about the deaths.

The city's main mosque, the Jama Masjid, was still considering an Islamic call for the funeral of the 12 western hostages whose portraits adorned the streets and public life.

But protests spread to the eastern Nepalese city of Jhapa, where police said they opened 12 rounds of tear gas to disperse a crowd of 1,000 people protesting against foreign troops. "At least two demonstrators were injured as they pelted stones against police lines," police said. Police said they feared the protests could turn into rioting by attacking government.

Shops and schools were also shut down for the official mourning in the Kathmandu kingdom's, have to be shut down. They are now in full swing.

Nepal, which is not part of the United Nations, has been a long, tough peace process, facing a decade of violence of thousands of young people to live in a peaceful state.

The 12 hostages, who were kidnapped 30 days before their deaths, were arrested, had been in Jordan in hopes of being freed and released.

Their names were listed in the newspaper's published list of names of a Western state being in Jordan and 12 others being shot in the largest massacre of hostages in post-war Iraq.

Most victims were killed in a series of attacks on the captives and captured. The government said the victims were shot and killed from Thursday to allow the city's 1.5 million people to feel safe after the violence.

"We are likely to return the captives to the westland to avoid any claims on the captives in the Middle East of peace," a local source said.

Fate of journalist-hostages hangs

AMMAN—French troops were to be sent to Iraq and Jordan on Thursday in a desperate bid to free two journalists seized by militants seeking to overthrow Iraq's law banning Islamic law in public schools.

A group of French Muslims were to be sent to the Iraqi capital of Baghdad to try to free the journalists. The group was led by the French Consul in the Middle East, which were at a link to President Jacques Chirac's government. But they are threatened in hopes of releasing the captives.

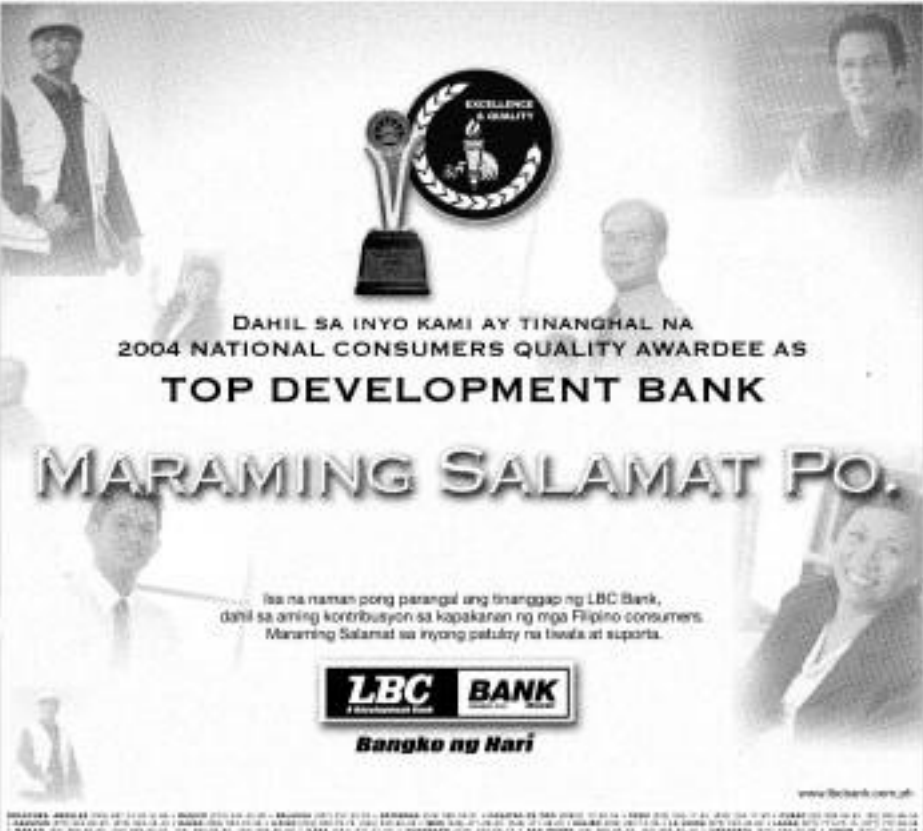

"I am against the presence of the Algerians in Iraq, it is a worrying factor, but if an American journalist was captured, my name would be the same," said Mohamed Jafar, a member of the French Muslim group. "The role of journalists, it is necessary. They inform us, they inform the world. Journalism is a profession that must be respected."

The situation of the two journalists was reported by the French Consul in the Middle East, which were at a link to President Jacques Chirac's government. But they are threatened in hopes of releasing the captives.

US to seek UN sanctions on Iran over nuke program

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Colin Powell said the United States plans to press for a range of possible UN Security Council sanctions against Iran in response to what he described as a "sustained effort" by that country to develop nuclear weapons.

Powell said reporters who arrive in the United States will urge the United Nations nuclear watchdog group on Sept. 12 in Vienna to refer the Iranian case to the UN Security Council for action.

"We're looking in the range of possible actions of a political, economic, diplomatic nature," Powell said.

He reiterated what U.S. leaders have said since President George W. Bush took office: Iran is among the top threats to international peace and security.

In Vienna, the UN's International Atomic Energy Agency will use the opportunity that Iran is giving to prove that it is not a nuclear power and will not be a nuclear power.

UN diplomats are also meeting with the International Atomic Energy Agency to discuss the Iranian case.

"Given there are sanctions that the international community can impose on Iran, it's appropriate that it (the Iran issue) be referred to the Security Council," Powell said.

He said it is not clear whether there is a consensus to do this.

Diplomats said the IAEA report on Iran with the new disclosures must be taken into account provided by Iran's government. Iran insists its nuclear program is devoted to the peaceful generation of electricity.

Earlier Wednesday, Undersecretary of State John R. Bolton, the administration's top voice on nuclear proliferation issues, said, "We view with great concern" revelations in the IAEA report that Iran is about to receive 27 tons of yellow cake uranium for its nuclear program.

Iranian leaders have said it is a challenge to produce enriched uranium, which is how it can be used to generate power or make nuclear warheads, depending on the degree of enrichment.

The United States will continue to urge other members of the UN agency to view Iran as a "major threat" to international peace and security.

Iranian leaders have said Iran is a "major threat" to international peace and security.

Another senior State administration official, in an interview in which his identity was withheld, said Iran was "justifying itself" in producing 100 kg of enriched uranium, enough for four nuclear weapons.

UN inspectors have been finding the evidence that Iran has a secret nuclear weapons program. Such a finding could be critical to the Bush administration's effort to gain support from the other 14 members of the agency to ask the UN Security Council to act.

Tom Coughlin, a senior department spokesman, said the report being released by the IAEA "contains evidence that Iran has been engaged in a secret nuclear weapons program for at least 10 years, has acquired a record of deception and denied access to nuclear inspectors."

Democratic presidential candidate John Kerry's campaign criticized the Bush administration for going to war against Iraq on what it called "discredited" grounds. The call for ending troops' involvement in Iraq to prevent Iran from developing nuclear weapons. AP

DPWH asked to repair dike in Tarlac town

By Carlos Pineda and Jerome Bering

THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS and Highways was called on yesterday to prioritize the repairs of a collapsed dike in Tarlac, which was damaged by Super Flooding in the past several days.

The request was made by Rep. Gilberto Francisco Jr. (DPW, Tarlac), warning that thousands of lives and millions of pesos worth of properties are under threat by Super Flooding if the breached dike in Calatagan, Batangas, is not immediately repaired.

Francisco represents the first district of Tarlac which includes the capital of the province but is not the province's flood-prone area.

"The biggest heavy damage is continuing to the coming days. If this happens, the threat remains of water coming out of the collapsed dike will submerge the whole town under water," Francisco said in a statement.

Thousands of Batangas residents from 30 barangays were earlier evacuated to flood-prone outcrops several miles to the north.

"There is no way we can wait for the Department of Public Works. The effect of this is the lives and livelihood of the people of Tarlac and nearby towns is imperiled," Francisco said.

The Calatagan dike is part of the Agos River Flood Control Project under the Project Management Office of the DPWH.

Francisco is also coordinating with the Department of Agriculture for the protection of such livestock as pigs and chickens that are under threat.

Public Works Secretary Elmer Fernandez said he wants to report on the status of flood-prone areas to the DPWH. He also wants to report on the status of flood-prone areas to the DPWH.

Probe ordered on QC prison shabu session

By Tina G. Santos

POLICE authorities yesterday ordered an investigation into the reported proliferation of illegal drugs inside the Quezon City Jail, despite the presence of jail guards who were supposed to implement tight measures to prevent its entry.

Three inmates were caught engaging in a shabu session yesterday inside their detention cell.

The suspects, who were earlier detained as suspected drug traffickers, were identified as Hasmang Mali, 25; Muhammad Ali Asdali, 42; and his son, Nelson Asdali, 26.

According to Supt. Cesar Binag, commander of the Central Police District-Kamuning Station, where the inmates were turned over, the discovery of the inmates' illegal activities came after jail guards had conducted a regular inspection of the cell block.

Binag said the prison guards noticed the suspects acting suspiciously inside the Dorm 7 Annex Building at the detention compound.

When guards accosted the three, they found that they were sniffing metamphatamine hydrochloride, or shabu.

Also found in the inmates' possession were drug paraphernalia and at least 14 sachets of shabu.

Binag claimed it was the biggest haul so far in the detention center.

"Because of the number of drug sachets seized from the suspects, it could be possible that the suspects were also selling drugs to their fellow inmates," a police investigator said.

Binag said they were still conducting an investigation to determine if there were lapses in the security measures implemented by jail authorities.

"I think there should be a review of the policies to prevent drugs and other illegal items from entering the jail compound," he added.

However, he surmised that the illegal drugs were most likely smuggled inside the detention center in food packages brought in by friends or relatives visiting the inmates.

Binag added that they could not yet say whether or not prison guards could be held liable for the incident.

It would also be difficult to determine when the illegal drugs were slipped in, he said.

Gun goes off, kills veteran cop

By Leila B. Salaverria

HOMICIDE investigators in Manila never thought they would be investigating the death of one of their own.

But they did just that Wednesday when SPO3 Solomon Bataller died after his service pistol fell and went off accidentally.

The incident happened in front of his 10-year-old son, who was unharmed.

The 49-year-old Bataller, a policeman for 24 years who had several awards to his name for being a veteran crime investigator, was declared dead on arrival at the Ospitaling Sampaloc.

He suffered two gunshot wounds.

Investigator SPO2 Diones Labarda said in his report that Bataller was cleaning his 9 mm pistol inside his house on Felina Street, Sampaloc, Wednesday afternoon when the accident took place.

Bataller was watching television with his son, when the pistol slipped from his hands and fell on the floor, police said.

Twice shot

The gun reportedly went off twice, hitting him in the chin and in the chest.

His son then called for help.

Members of the Western Police District said Bataller was a great loss to the police force and his death was a shock to most of them.

"Hindi namin akalain na timbestigahan namin ang pagkamatay ng kasamahan namin (We never thought we would be investigating a colleague's death)," said SPO2 Edison Bertoldo, who worked in the morning shift with Bataller.

Colleagues told the INQUIRER that Bataller used to be in the Marines before he joined the police force.

In his stint as a policeman, Bataller worked as an investigator and was named three times as the best investigator of the year. He was also a director of the Manila's Finest Brotherhood Association, Inc.

WPD spokesperson Chief Insp. Gerry Agunod said that since Bataller died while still in active service, his family would be receiving full death benefits for members of the Philippine National Police.

Escapee gives up

THE DRUG suspect who escaped while being escorted to court on Monday surrendered to authorities yesterday morning. This was a huge relief for Mandaluyong warden Supt. Abraham Abella, who was given a week to find escaped suspect Maurillo Marcelo. SPO4 Edmund Espiritu negotiated for Marcelo's surrender, according to Insp. Godofredo Velasco, Kalentong precinct commander. According to Abella, Marcelo had told his wife, Susan, that he wanted to escape to raise bail money for him and his family. Susan and one of their daughters are also in jail on drug charges.

Dirtiest barangay named

THE METROPOLITAN Manila Development Authority yesterday identified the dirtiest barangays in the metropolis as part of its "Cleanest and Dirtiest Barangay Contest." The dirty barangays were selected on the basis of "garbage sightings" from Oct. 1, 2003 to June 30, 2004. Pasay City's Barangay 145 Zone 16 was named the dirtiest, followed by Quezon City's Barangay Sto. Domingo, Navotas' Barangay North Bay Boulevard (South), Caloocan City's Barangay 38, Zone 4, Manila's Barangay 101 Zone 8, Valenzuela City's Barangay Gen. T. De Leon, Malabon's Barangay Potrero, Makati City's Guadalupe Nuevo, Mandaluyong City's Barangay Plain View, Pateros' Barangay Sta. Ana, and Parañaque City's Barangay Tambo. The MMDA said the cities of Pasig, Marikina, Muntinlupa, Las Piñas and the municipality of San Juan did not have any barangays falling under the "dirtiest category."

Business leaders call for Asia-Pacific free trade area

MANILA—Leaders from the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) April 20 summit yesterday have asked APEC leaders to continue establishing a Free Trade Area of the Asia-Pacific (FTAAP).

Roberto Romulo, chair of the APEC Business Advisory Council (ABAC) Philippines and one of the country's chief representatives to APEC, said the grouping backed the latest program endorsed in the WTO talks in Geneva.

But the advisory group maintains that the multilateral trading system is still of paramount importance and that there is a need to strengthen APEC's trade and investment liberalization and facilitation (TIFA) agenda.

Proactive

"Unless APEC adopts a much more ambitious and proactive approach to its TIFA agenda, it appears unlikely that the 2010 deadline for the developed economies to achieve the Bogor Goals of free and open trade and investment will be met," Romulo said. "This is a major concern for APEC since it goes to the heart of APEC's credibility as a regional economic cooperation forum."

APEC's Free Trade Area of the Asia-Pacific proposal calls for a limited process of eliminating barriers to trade in goods and services by the Bogor deadline, instead of the current voluntary and uncoordinated approach.

Voluntary

The cooperation in the FTAAP would be voluntary and would not necessarily involve all APEC economies at the beginning. This is contained in a paper prepared under the auspices of APEC's Trade and Investment Liberalization Working Group (TILWG), to provide an objective analysis of the FTAAP proposal.

The proliferation of bilateral FTA agreements is both a source of problems, including its impact on innovation and investment, and a source of opportunities with the Bogor Goals commitment of APEC economies relating to business and competitiveness. One example cited is the free trade agreement between Australia and the United States which provides for a transition period of 10 years, or may be extended not only at the Bogor deadline of 2010 but developed countries before the 2020 deadline for developed economies.

Obstacles

Romulo said the proposed FTAAP has a lot of upside to it but more work is needed to realize its pros and cons. In the FTAAP proposal, gone against the grain of APEC's voluntary and coordinated nature, considerable political obstacles have to be overcome for this proposal to advance. The clear one against the liberal FTAAP model, the greatest the political will required."

IT is one thing to build a mall, and it's another to create an experience in malls.

Paul Husband of Husband Retail Consulting in Hong Kong has built a business helping developers create high-performance shopping centers. Then, he can take the right actions to build a mall, but what he brings to mall development is really the shopping ex-

There is a belief in business that success happens to a person who comes to the right place at the right time. In Husband's case, he has the right attitude. He joined advertising agency Dentsu-Hong-Publicis (DHP) in ALLONG this time every year, I have come up with a list of best-reviewed, best-reviewed products. This year, as expected, I have included the best in an extraordinary

It lasts even longer—a good eight hours without drying or perpetually chapped lips. It moisturizes, makes plump up lips and gives them a very shiny that does not look greasy or cheap.

The colors are very beautiful; in fact, as one of the 10 shakes out air, we have keeping them. They are pure, competitive and, dare I say, pure, better than a lot of prestigious brands that are double.

The great news, the bad is variable this month!

The next two products won't emerge till November 2009, so I regret you will have to wait. They are both 20 gram liquid chocolate capsules in the meantime, so the wait won't be that agonizing.

The second host presented this time was the new host fragrance, Ylang-Ylang (Canarium), a mix of green citrus, woods, white pepper, honey, blossom and cedarwood. The flower is the most delicious note, and the wood smells heavenly. Combined with the rest of the scents, the new fragrance gives off a slight sensual note. The perfect way to describe it would be a sweet fruit which can be used in the office, almost round.

I can now imagine that as a high-end girl so her position fragrance from body Cologne, as well as in a woman to her own "doing laundry" with her friends. It may be a little bit more, but a success.

Anti-hepatitis viruses for

The grand finale product is always a mix of early spring collection from the Avenue line. It's understandable that this will be launched November 1st, because that is when the weather gets colder and hand bags tend to be more appreciated.

The Apple Group (Apple Computer) with its Macintosh dominates the "topper" (desktop) market, although the bulk of Apple's assets elsewhere have truly outdone themselves this time. The Humana culture and fills out its extensive base (Jaguar, Lotus, even's firm, traditional business and the like).

Used the barium-contrast study and the results were almost normal. The definite barium esophagus. Of course, the effort was temporary, but the barium promises great improvement with regular use. This will be a biggie for individuals who are afraid of needles, blood and surgery, but want to eliminate heartburn.

The new formula must be applied daily, spreading up and over until evenly absorbed. Only one drop per area is needed. Target areas are the forehead, between the eyebrows, under the eyes, nose's base and around the mouth and hair.

Prediction: expect a drop in Botox and filler sales. Certain doctors (cosmeticists) focus only on the upper third of the face, but not on the areas around the mouth and cheeks but some may would look ahead of us.

This system provides the same results with-out the downsides of penicillin, so it can be applied anywhere in the host without the consumer looking like a shocked deer caught in the headlights.

Mel perhaps the biggest heavy work through this year is that my old, the program and why today work, is the new drive on.

IF THE Cultural Center of the Philippines has its way, there will be a National Artist for Fashion Design. And a strong contender for that will be "Asia's Fashion Queen," Jose "Pinoy" Moreno.

Under its president Ben Arzaga, CCP is seeking to elevate fashion to the same level as dance, theater, music and other art forms. And Arzaga has made his mission known by helping stage "Glamorous Stories," a tribute to the distinctive artist who made his last years as a fashion designer over 40 years.

The tribute, which will be series and scheduled by Remy Jimenez, will be staged on the 3rd and 27 at the CCP Main Theater hall, 1015A U.S. and will have as its beneficiary the CCP Arts For the People Program, Good Willing Foundation and Jose T. Moreno Foundation.

"That's as far as the stage as a public space comes is concerned," said Arzaga in the press conference to preview Moreno's designs. "It's an attempt to earn from the Western concept of fashion recognition to the artists. One objective and personal expression of the artist can be an art form."

Arzaga, a former dancer, stressed the importance of recognizing other art forms that contribute to the country's cultural, social and economic development. Fashion, of course, is one of the country's most visible and most popular art forms, not only in print but in television and broadcasting.

Moreno, arguably the country's most popular Filipino designer, died last December 1997 not only because of his dedication to his craft, but also for his efforts to put the country on the fashion map. In 1960s, Moreno has done shows in Paris, London, Madrid, Rome, Vienna, Moscow, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington D.C., Tokyo, Bangkok, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore, among others.

Deserving

"The idea of giving a tribute to those who often create exhibits were given to 'Silent and Invisible,'" added Jimenez. "Though I've established and I've also discovered such an honor for his efforts in being home in the country. He deserves to be in the same way other artists designers deserve it. Hopefully this tribute will just be the first."

The tribute will show a 120-piece collection consisting mostly of vintage pieces that he updated or fused with new elements to give them a more current appeal. Others may doubt the fashion as Moreno's "best" (what) collection, but the designer himself said this was his way of appealing to clients to raise their status like they in the other world of art.

"A lot of designers have absolute beautiful clothes," said Moreno. "It would be a pity if their owners didn't make an effort to

The show will be divided into 18 segments, including, of course, a focus on the comic and Murtha's clubhouse and restaurants on the Filipino weekend. It will also be an occasion for the designer to talk and (give his comments of the)

In honor of Queen Isabella, the innkeeper who gave Columbus a warm welcome in Spain, he'll show Tlustecan-like guests with tight bodices and skirts with laced-up hemsides. Other Mexican-inspired costumes include guests worn with the old, red-blended de Manila.

Designer Manóviljev himself produced Blumenthal's show in London sometime in 1998, when black and white guests wore all the rage. For a time, the designer also did the costumes of the Beyoncé/Jay-Z duo in the 1990s. Thus, a Maria Clara portrait, complete with flowing skirts and ornate, draped ensembles, is in order.

Spreading of the Bayanlath dancers, the show will also feature the group and other Cebu-based performers such as the Philippine Philharmonic Orchestra, Philippine Madrigal Singers, Philippine Ballet Theatre and other Philippine.

Indeed, it will be an interactive event with Morpurgo's designs sharing the stage with other artistic forms. The story, fashion design, is the basis of a narrative and, as a visual master of remembrance, will be given a central place.
